Dahn, Ingo

Automatic textbook construction and web delivery in the 21st century.

We explain the basic concepts of Slicing Book Technology, which is a new method to augment textbooks with online personalization services. This technology is then compared with techniques used for computer-based training. Finally, some related technological and economic trends are discussed. (Author’s abstract)

Classification: U50

Keywords: computer-based training; personalization; slicing book technology