Iteration and anxiety in mathematical literature.

PRIMUS, Probl. Resour. Issues Math. Undergrad. Stud. 26, No. 4, 345-355 (2016).

Summary: We describe our experiences in team-teaching an honors seminar on mathematics and literature. We focus particularly on two of the texts we read: Georges Perec's How to Ask Your Boss for a Raise and Alain Robbe-Grillet's Jealousy, both of which make use of iterative structures.
